HERITAGE

Visit the citadelle

Encircled by its fortifications, the medieval citadel is situated on an over 60-metre-high limestone peninsula, shaped over thousands of years by the sea and the wind. Roman emperors, doges of the republics of Pisa and Genoa, visits by Charles V and Napoleon I... Bonifacio's history is rich. All the historical, religious, military, and civil monuments form a real open-air museum.

Several possibilities are available for exploring it:

- In complete freedom, thanks to a circuit of «must-see» places that are not to be missed. Download the map from www.bonifacio.fr or visit one of the tourist information offices.
- With the help of an audio-guide, you can take a 1.5 hour walk through the old town centre, passing through the narrow streets, monuments, and squares. You can rent one at the information offices of the citadel.

Consider coming in the evening to enjoy the illuminated monuments.
Magical moments guaranteed!

RATES

HERITAGE

King of Aragon's stairway

An unusual monument in the city of cliffs, the «Escalier du Roy d'Aragon» has 187 steps and overhangs the sea by 65 metres. Below, a secure walk between the sky and the sea offers a unique panorama of the Bouches de Bonifacio. A legend tells us that in 1420, the King of Aragon Alphonse V, already master of Sardinia, wanted to acquire the impregnable city of Bonifacio. For access, his soldiers are said to have cut a natural fault in the cliff into a stairway, and this in one night! In reality, this natural fault has existed since the dawn of time and this natural passage has been constantly improved since the prehistoric times to become today a real stairway.

The visit of this very special site requires a good physical condition and the respect of safety rules. In case of unsuitable footwear, access to the monument will be refused.

Le Gouvernail

Built in 1880 by the French military engineers, the Gouvernail was the surveillance spot at the entry to the port as well as over the entirety of the Strait of Bonifacio. The local fishermen called this site the «Gouvernail» (Rudder) of Corsica due to its shape and geographical position.

After descending 168 steps, you will discover a superb view over the entry to the bottleneck and the cliffs of Bonifacio.

This is a historical and most original visit not to be missed.

Coastal walks of Bonifacio

•Campu Rumanilu trail

From the Saint Roch pass, turn your back on the old town and take the tarmac road that climbs up the cliffs. Duration: 1 hour return

The path goes along the cliff towards Pertusatu, as far as Piantarella, with a view of the islands. The cliff: 100 meters of sedimentary deposits and marine organisms. The best time to see it is in spring or autumn: arborescent sagebrush, orchids, scillas, rosemary... Diu Grossu, a headland that has become an islet.

•Campu Rumanilu-Pertusatu trail

Continuing from the Campu Romanilu, this path leads to the splendid Saint-Antoine beach, passing the semaphore and the lighthouse of the same name: Pertusatu.

There are numerous viewpoints over Sardinia and the Lavezzi Islands, and the beach offers two options: the fine sandy beach of Saint-Antoine, and the more original beach of the Trois Pointes, a stone terrace that descends into the sea.

Duration: 3 hours round trip

•Strada Vecia & Madonetta Path

The path connects Bonifacio to the beach of Paragan, extending to the Trinity hermitage. You can discover the Bonifacian countryside and some remains of human activity, such as numerous dry-stone walls, baracuns (limestone structures) and old lime kilns. Part of the path is paved with uneven slabs, worn down by centuries of use. From the port of Bonifacio, head towards the campsite, after the petrol station, take the paved path bordered on the left by a high wall.

Duration: 3 hours round trip.

•Fenu Path (Trinité)

From Paragan: from Bonifacio towards Figari on the RN 196, 500 m before the D 60, take the track on the left towards the Anse de Paragan, then again 1st track on the left. Park behind the beach. Follow the coast to the right (facing the sea). From La Tonnara, follow the coast to the left towards Stagnolu. You may come across the agile goats climbing the rocks. At your feet you will find at the base of the rocks, the erodium, a geranium endemic to Corsica and Sardinia.

Duration: 4h30

•Rundinara Path

Close to the beach of Rundinara, this shady path goes around a lagoon: the pond of Prisarella. Throughout the walk, you can admire the beauty of this site, which is protected by the Conservatoire du Littoral. In the past, there were two islands. The sea level has risen, and the currents have deposited sand and pebbles in strips, forming the sensual curves of the bay. The Jason butterfly likes ripe fruit and salt puddles; its caterpillars grow all winter by nibbling on the leaves of the arbutus. The leaves of the Posidonia (sea grass), laid down in thick banks in winter, protect the shores.

Duration: 1 hour round trip

•Lavezzu Island Paths

Departure from the jetty. Between the chaos of the rocks and turquoise waters, the walk will surprise you with the variety of the fauna and flora present on the island. You are in the heart of the Bouches de Bonifacio Reserve, so don't forget to respect the area and stay on the marked paths.

Duration: 1 hour round trip
